Dear director,

As an educator, I am extremely diligent, people oriented, culturally inquisitive, highly organized and always seeking to deliver the best instruction possible. I am looking for an international teaching position, so I am able to utilize my skills and simultaneously partake in a new culture.

I have a great interest in immersing myself in Chilean culture, recognizing distinctions and sharing my knowledge. I intend to depart for Chile mid-July and would like to remain and teach there for the duration of a year in order to gain a sense of the culture, country, and gain experience teaching in a foreign location. I would remain at least through 2012 until the subsequent July.

I have worked in two high schools performing a myriad of roles in the English Language Learners' department. From tutoring students individually to full classroom instruction, I have worked on reading development, writing structure, vocabulary usage and speech instruction. I am comfortable in the expectations allotted to this profession, but more significantly I relish people and respect the chance to play a role in their development. Finally performing this role in a foreign country, allows me the benefit of developing my awareness and understandings from the people and country. I would greatly appreciate this opportunity.

Sincerely,

Dina Rubakha
